Picture perfect home that blends old with the new!

Looking for something a little bit special? Look no further than 15 Stanford Street. Sitting on an enviable corner block on a wide avenue and surrounded by established hedging and trees, this charming and lovingly restored 1920's miner's cottage blends heritage bones with contemporary additions, embracing the best of both worlds.

The bricks that once formed the original chimney create the path you walk on as you approach the traditional bullnose verandah, which welcomes you with a renovated timber deck and original sash windows on each side of the ornate timber front door, offering a glimpse into what awaits inside. Step through the door into Wending House, where the original weatherboard and tin roof add to the character and charm of the home. Soaring 10-foot ceilings and tasteful wainscoting in the hallway lead to beautiful original Blackbutt hardwood floorboards throughout the living and front bedrooms, each with original wall wood panelling and sash windows.
